Free Resource of the Day

200 Free Courses from Coursera.org

Today we want to point you to over 200 free courses being offered from over 30 universities on Coursera with their massive open online courses. To date over 1.7 million students signed up for these courses. The courses feature video lectures, discussion forums, quizzes and writing assignments, and many more ways that they're striving to make their massive courses closer to the university course experience. The courses do have a set time period and it remains to be seen if they will archive them for access at a later date. Most of the fall of 2012 courses are still up, so it's a good time to take a look at what they have to offer.
